

YOUNG CRYDER PASSES AWAY.

Son of Millionaire Duncan
Cryder and Brother of Cryder Triplets Dies.

VICTIM OF AN ACCIDENT.

Thrown from Car Platform, Wheels
Crushed Leg and Amputation
Proved Fatal.

Ogden Cryder, the eighteen-year-old son of Millionaire Duncan Cryder and brother of the three young women known as the Cryder triplets, died at St. Vincent's Hospital last night as the result of an accident on a street car last Friday.

He fell from an Eighth street car while it was in motion and one of his legs was so badly crushed by the wheels that amputation was necessary. It was delayed until Tuesday in the hope that the leg might be saved, but it was then seen that there was no hope and the operation was performed.

After that it seemed that the young man would recover, but complications set in and he died last night before the members of his family could reach his bedside.

HAD PREMONITION OF COMING DEATH.

"SOMETHING IS GOING TO HAPPEN," SAID HILLIER.

A Few Minutes Later His Head Was Cut Off by an Engine.

When Edward Hillier, a car coupler on the Kings County Elevated Road, finished his work this morning and was about to start home, he remarked to a fellow employee:

"I feel queer—something is going to happen to me."

His companion laughed, "I guess that's foolish," he said.

Then Hillier started homeward. He walked down the tracks at the yards in the East New York section of Brooklyn. As he reached a point where several side tracks branch from the main line, a swiftly moving train ran down. Hillier fell on the track and a second later his head had been cut off by the wheels of engine No. 40, which was in charge of William Carey.

Carey said the tracks were covered with snow and ice from which steam was rising and that he did not see Hillier until the engine was upon him. Hillier was thirty years old and lived at Dean street and classes in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Carey, who lives at 121 Stone avenue, Brooklyn, was hearing of the accident at Court, and held in $500 bail for examination.

Brill Bros.' Semi-Annual Clothing Sale.

It would be needless to describe all the chances to save at the Brill semi-annual sale, for everybody knows when this progressive firm starts out to accomplish anything they leave no stone unturned, and in this sale every price on their stock of clothing has come under the blow of the "prize man's axe." Everybody knows that the "regular" prices are so surprisingly and uniformly low that any reduction from them makes a very big bargain and there is no question as to the reliability of their goods—none at all. Their semi-annual half-off sales are no novelty. They have been tried by the experience of countless thousands, and proved well worthy of every man's notice. The very best of the genuine values to be obtained here is the fact that their delivery books show a record of the same names year after year and year. It is true enough to say as a proverb that "once a customer of Brill's, always one."

"MR. LOW'S AWFUL NICE," SAY LITTLE EAST SIDE MAIDS WHO VISIT THE MAYOR.

JENNIE, BECKIE,
AND
SOPHIE ORTMAN

BOUQUET OF AMERICAN BEAUTIES THAT PLEASES THE MAYOR.

True American beauties five of them and all wee bairns, opened their petals in merry talk this morning to tell The Evening World reporter how they had been the honored guests of Mayor Low on the first "bush day" of his administration.

When this bouquet was presented by Secretary Reynolds, the Mayor smiled and wished them each a Happy New Year.

The five were small maidens from the east side, members of the American Beauty History Class of the University Settlement in Edinboro street. The bunch of roses consisted of Rebecca Ortmann, Rebecca Ortmann, Jennie Ortmann and Jennie Ortmann, all of No. 128 Dean street. Their ages are from eight to ten.

Find Welcome Early.

Armed with the welcome of the settlement to Mr. Reynolds, the Mayor's secretary, they walked into the City Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Reynolds greeted them warmly and at once presented them to the Mayor.

He shook hands with each and inquired their names. They were all warmly welcomed by Mr. Low's kindness. After asking several questions Mr. Low wished them a jolly time during the New Year.

DRANK ACID, BUT DOCTOR SAVED HIM.

ROSENBLATT WILL LIVE FOR SOME OTHER GIRL.

One He Loved Is Married, but the Physician Convinced Him
There Are Others.

Joseph Rosenblatt, a father, twenty-five years old, living at No. 845 Madison street, took a dose of carbolic acid last afternoon.

Rosenblatt, who lived with Joseph M. Schimmel, the loved a girl and was the blind girl and did not recognize his situation. She married another man. Then the girl died in Rosenblatt's life, and the world became black. He had nothing more to live for, he thought, so he chose the carbolic route as a more peaceful and quieter exit.

He was in the shape of Dr. Leopold Harris, of No. 66 Columbia street, and a stomach pump overtook him on the way and he was brought back to earth after some vigorous treatment. Rosenblatt said he did not try to live without the blind girl, especially after the doctor informed him that there were other blind girls on earth.

LOW IS IDEAL OF THE LITTLE ONES.

While seekers for jobs get much comfort out of a satisfaction at the office of the Mayor, the little ones and girls who want to see a real live mayor are not so easily satisfied.

Joseph M. Schimmel, ten years old, and Horace Schimmel, twelve years old, and others in the group of little ones who were with the Mayor yesterday, were much interested in the Mayor's office.
